

Criteria Statement from Ron and Lyn Scott of Moon Mountain Sanctuary.

We are interested in artists exploring the dynamic aspect of outdoors culture driven by the ever-moving forces of nature. Art can please the eye beyond a static form.

Sculptures can move with wind and movement of the seasons and diurnal temperature changes.

We are interested in encouraging outdoor sculpture to move and be dynamic. Thereby reflecting nature that is not static but ever moving. Be it energy waves that we feel, or diurnal temperature changes that create movement through noise. Movement may not be seen or obvious as the art responds to the wind and changing seasons. Sometimes the movement can be dramatic. It's ever changing.

Moon Mountain exists as a sanctuary for horses where movement is constant, awe inspiring and simply art in motion. Or the simple beauty of grasses as they seed, moving with the wind. Then the birds that create chaotic movement when they flock in numbers across our farm. Or the simple, awe inspiring energy of solitary bees as they buzz from flower to flower. It goes on.

We would like to see sculptures that reflect this wonder of nature. We will happily sponsor a kinetic inspiration for sculpture.
